

1 The RICHARDS, WATSON & GERSHON
A Professional Corporation
2 STEVEN H. KAUFMANN (Bar No. 61686)
skaufmann@rwglaw.com
3 GINETTA L. GIOVINCO (Bar No. 227140)
ggiovinco@rwglaw.com
4 355 South Grand Avenue, 40th Floor
Los Angeles, California 90071-3101
5 Telephone: 213.626.8484
Facsimile: 213.626.0078

6 JOHANNA N. CANLAS (Bar No. 215906)
7 jcanlas@mcdougallove.com
CITY ATTORNEY
8 CITY OF SOLANA BEACH
635 S. Highway 101
9 Solana Beach, California 92075
Telephone: 858.720.2400
10 Facsimile: 858.792.6513

[EXEMPT FROM FILING FEES
PURSUANT TO GOVT. CODE § 6103]

11 Attorneys for Defendant and Respondent
CITY OF SOLANA BEACH

12
13 SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
14 COUNTY OF SAN DIEGO, NORTH COUNTY DIVISION
15

16 BEACH & BLUFF CONSERVANCY,
17 Plaintiff and Petitioner,
18 v.
19 CITY OF SOLANA BEACH; et al; and
DOES 1 through 50, inclusive,
20 Defendants and Respondents;
21 CALIFORNIA COASTAL COMMISSION,
22 Defendant-Intervenor.

Case No. 37-2013-00046561-CU-WM-NC
CITY OF SOLANA BEACH'S REPLY
MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER TO SECOND AMENDED
COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY
RELIEF AND PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE

[IMAGED FILE]

Date: February 27, 2015
Time: 1:30 p.m.
Dept: N-31
Judge: Hon. Timothy M. Casserly

Trial Date: Not Set

Date Action Filed: April 26, 2013

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Page

I. INTRODUCTION ..... 1

II. THE FIRST, THIRD, FOURTH, AND FIFTH CAUSES OF ACTION, WHICH SEEK TO CHALLENGE THE ORIGINAL POLICIES OF THE CERTIFIED LUP, ARE BARRED BY RES JUDICATA ..... 1

    A. The Commission and City Must be Timely Named in An Action
    Challenging Policies That the Commission Conceived and Required in Approving the LUP ..... 2

    B. Petitioner Cannot Cure Failure to Challenge the Commission’s
    Approval of the LUP Through this Lawsuit..... 3

III. THE COMPLAINT AND PETITION FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE
OF ACTION FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF OR TRADITIONAL MANDATE ..... 5

IV. THE FOURTH AND SEVENTH CAUSES OF ACTION FAIL TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR “UNCONSTITUTIONAL CONDITIONS” ..... 8

V. THE PETITION IS UNCERTAIN BECAUSE IT CONFLATES LUP
POLICIES NOW IMMUNE FROM CHALLENGE WITH SUBSEQUENT LUP AMENDMENTS ..... 9

VI. CONCLUSION ..... 10

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

		Page(s)
3	Cases
4	Beach and Bluff Conservancy v. California Coastal Com.
5	SDSC No. 37-2012-00053289.....	3
6	California Coastal Com. v. Superior Court
7	(1989) 210 Cal.App.3d 1488 .....	4, 7
8	California Coastal Com. v. Tahmassebi
9	(1998) 69 Cal.App.4 th 255 .....	7
10	Citizens for Responsible Development v. City of West Hollywood
11	(1995) 39 Cal.App.4 th 490 .....	3, 4
12	City of Chula Vista v. Superior Court
13	(1982) 133 Cal.App.3d 472 .....	5, 6
14	Garfield v. Board of Medical Examiners
15	(1950) 99 Cal.App.2d 219 .....	10
16	Hagopian v. State of California
17	(2014) 223 Cal.App.4 th 349 .....	2
18	Homeowner’s Association of Solana Beach &amp; Tennis Club v. City of Solana
19	Beach
20	[missing citation].....	4
21	Koontz v. St. Johns River Water Mgmt. Dist.
22	(2013) 133 S. Ct. 2586 .....	9
23	McAllister v. California Coastal Com.
24	(2008) 169 Cal.App.4 th 912 .....	3
25	Moran v. Bd. of Medical Examiners
26	(1948) 32 Cal.2d 301 .....	10
27	Nollan v. California Coastal Com.
28	(1987) 483 U.S. 825 .....	4
	Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com.
	(1982) 33 Cal.3d 158 .....	7
	Patrick Media Group, Inc. v. California Coastal Com.
	(1992) 9 Cal.App.4 th 592 .....	3, 10
	Powell v. Lampton
	(1938) 30 Cal.App.2d 43 .....	10
	San Mateo Coastal Landowners Assn. v. County of San Mateo
	(1995) 38 Cal.App.4 th 523 .....	5, 6, 8, 9

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES (cont.)

Page(s)

San Remo Hotel, L.P. v. City and County of San Francisco
(2002) 27 Cal.4th 643 ..... 9

Sierra Club v. California Coastal Com.
(1993) 12 Cal.App.3d 602 ..... 8, 9

Steinberg v. California Coastal Com.
SDSC No. 37- 2012-00053290..... 3

Yost v. Thomas
(1984) 36 Cal.3d 561 ..... 8

Statutes

California Code of Regulations,
Title 14, Section 13541 ..... 2

Coastal Act
Section 30803 ..... 7

Coastal Act
Section 30010 ..... 8

Coastal Act
Section 30800 ..... 6, 7

Coastal Act
Section 30801 ..... 5, 6, 7

Coastal Act
Section 30803(a)..... 7

Coastal Act
Section 30809 ..... 7

Coastal Act
Section 30810 ..... 7

Coastal Act
Section 30811 ..... 7

Code of Civil Procedure
Section 1094.5 ..... 5

Evidence Code
Section 664 ..... 3

Public Resources Code
Section 30512(b) ..... 2

1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Petitioner’s lawsuit raises two distinct challenges. First, Petitioner challenges certain Land
3 Use Plan (“LUP”) policies that the Coastal Commission conceived and required in its March 2012
4 approval of the City of Solana Beach LUP. This challenge constitutes an impermissible collateral
5 attack on the City’s action to accept the Commission’s decision and is barred by res judicata. This 6 Court previously rejected Petitioner’s direct challenge to the Commission’s LUP decision for 7 failure to timely name the City as a party. Appeals from that ruling have been dismissed, and the 8 Court’s decision is now final. The result is the Commission’s decision and required policy changes
9 are now final, compliant with the Coastal Act, and constitutionally valid. The Second Amended
10 Complaint and Petition (“Petition”) is further flawed because the sole method to review a decision
11 to certify an LUP is administrative mandamus, not declaratory relief or traditional mandate. And,
12 Petitioner’s claim of “unconstitutional conditions” is premature and must be raised, if at all, at the 13 permit stage.

14 Petitioner comes closer to the mark in its challenge to certain more recent amendments to 15 the LUP (“LUPA”). The Commission and City are now parties in this case, avoiding as to the 16 LUPA the flaw that resulted in dismissal of Petitioner’s initial lawsuit against the Commission over 17 the LUP. To mask the res judicata issue, however, Petitioner has lumped together its two 18 challenges by general reference to the “LUP,” leaving the Petition uncertain.

19 The City therefore requests that the Court sustain its demurrer without leave to amend as to 20 Petitioner’s claims regarding the original LUP, its claims for declaratory relief and traditional 21 mandate, and its premature claims regarding purported “unconstitutional conditions.” The City
22 further requests that the Court grant leave to amend to permit Petitioner to properly replead this 23 case as to the LUPA alone to eliminate Petitioner’s conflation of the LUP and LUPA policies.

24 II. THE FIRST, THIRD, FOURTH, AND FIFTH CAUSES OF ACTION, WHICH
25 SEEK TO CHALLENGE THE ORIGINAL POLICIES OF THE CERTIFIED LUP,
26 ARE BARRED BY RES JUDICATA

27 The First, Third, Fourth, and Fifth Causes of Action are barred by res judicata because they 28 constitute an impermissible collateral attack on the original Land Use Plan (“LUP”) policies, which

1 the Commission adopted in its March 2012 approval of the City’s LUP.

2 A. The Commission and City Must be Timely Named in An Action Challenging
3 Policies That the Commission Conceived and Required in Approving the LUP.

4 As discussed at length in the Commission’s Reply Brief (at pp. 2-3), Petitioner
5 fundamentally misconceives the LUP review process. In brief, the local government submits the 6 LUP portion of its Local Coastal Program (“LCP”) to the Commission for review. The 7 Commission exercises a quasi-judicial function by determining whether the City’s submittal
8 comports with the policies of the Coastal Act. (Hagopian v. State of California (2014) 223
9 Cal.App.4th 349, 362.) If the Commission determines not to certify an LUP, it must provide a 10 written explanation, or findings, and, as relevant here, it may suggested modifications (“suggested
11 modifications”), which, if adopted by the local government, cause the LUP to be deemed certified 12 upon confirmation by the Commission’s executive director. (Pub. Res. Code, § 30512(b).) The 13 local government then has only two options: (1) accept the Commission’s suggested modifications
14 without change or (2) make further revisions and resubmit the LUP to the Commission to start the 15 review process over again. (Pub. Res. Code, § 30512(b); Tit. 14, Cal. Code Regs., § 13541.) The 16 City here opted for the former.

17 Despite this statutory scheme, Petitioner argues, in effect, that it may bypass judicial review
18 of the Commission’s decision and its suggested modifications to LUP policies, and instead need 19 only sue the City for its subsequent action to accept the suggested modifications. Under the 20 Coastal Act, the Commission (1) reviews the City’s LUP submittal; (2) analyzes the submittal for 21 consistency with the Coastal Act; (3) produces a staff report which formulates suggested 22 modifications and provides the legal and factual justification for revisions to land use policies in 23 written findings; (4) conducts a full public hearing and permits written and oral testimony so 24 aggrieved parties may exhaust their administrative remedies, as legally required; and (5) makes the 25 quasi-judicial decision which the City is left to accept without change or reject. Ignoring the 26 Commission’s foregoing statutory duties under the Coastal Act, Petitioner’s thesis is that the 27 Commission’s decision is irrelevant. According to Petitioner, it can simply attack the City’s action
28 to accept the Commission’s quasi-judicial determination, need not name the Commission as a party

1 (timely or otherwise), and can raise statutory and constitutional issues concerning the
2 Commission’s decision in its absence. This makes no sense. Petitioner’s argument literally stands
3 the Coastal Act on its head. It is precisely why the Commission intervened in this lawsuit, despite 4 having prevailed in the prior lawsuit brought by Petitioner challenging the LUP.

5 Here, the Petition alleges the City submitted its draft of the LUP to the Commission for 6 certification in October 2011, and “at its hearing on March 7, 2012, the Commission denied
7 certification of the City’s LUP and instead certified a different LUP that contained substantial
8 modifications demanded by Commission staff.” (Petition, ¶¶ 16-17.) Thereafter, the Council
9 adopted a resolution accepting the Commission’s suggested modifications. (Id., ¶ 18.)

10 Petitioner failed to properly sue the Commission on its March 2012 decision and suggested
11 modifications to policies in the LUP. This Court properly ruled that the action was barred because 12 Petitioner failed to timely name the City as a party to that action within the Coastal Act’s 60-day
13 statute of limitations. (Beach and Bluff Conservancy v. California Coastal Com., SDSC No. 37-
14 2012-00053289, and Steinberg v. California Coastal Com., SDSC No. 37- 2012-00053290.)
15 Appeals from the Court’s correct ruling were subsequently dismissed. The lawsuit challenging the 16 Commission’s LUP decision is now final. (City’s RJN, Exhs. 1-2.)

17 B. Petitioner Cannot Cure Failure to Challenge the Commission’s Approval of the 18 LUP Through this Lawsuit.

19 Petitioner is completely dismissive of the Court’s ruling, its finality, and its consequence.
20 The ruling is now res judicata, and it bars this further lawsuit against the City, which seeks, through 21 the “backdoor,” to challenge the policies the Commission required in its quasi-judicial 22 administrative process. Especially in the context of Commission actions, a quasi-judicial decision 23 that is not timely challenged and has not been overturned through administrative mandamus – the 24 situation here – is “absolutely immune from collateral attack.” (Citizens for Responsible 25 Development v. City of West Hollywood (1995) 39 Cal.App.4th 490, 505; Patrick Media Group, Inc.
26 v. California Coastal Com. (1992) 9 Cal.App.4th 592, 607-608.) A Commission LUP decision is 27 presumed to be correct and to have properly applied the law (Evid. Code, § 664; McAllister v.
28 California Coastal Com. (2008) 169 Cal.App.4th 912, 913), and if not properly or timely

1 challenged, the presumption is conclusive, and the decision is “absolutely immune” from collateral
2 challenge. (Citizens for Responsible Development, supra, 169 Cal.App.4th at 913.) In this case, it
3 means that because Petitioner failed to properly challenge the Commission’s decision and the 4 changes it required to LUP policies, those policies are now deemed proper, compliant with the 5 Coastal Act, and constitutional. Petitioner is not entitled to a redo by suing the City.

6 The bar of res judicata applies even if the issue raised is one of constitutional dimension. In 7 California Coastal Com. v. Superior Court (“Ham”) (1989) 210 Cal.App.3d 1488, a beachfront
8 property owner sued the Commission, alleging that a condition requiring a public access dedication
9 amounted to a taking. The lawsuit followed the High Court’s decision in Nollan v. California
10 Coastal Com. (1987) 483 U.S. 825, invalidating the same type of condition as an unconstitutional
11 taking. The Ham Court held that despite Nollan, because the landowner failed to timely challenge
12 the Commission’s decision, the decision was res judicata. (Ham, 210 Cal.App.3d at 1495-1500.)

13 Petitioner argues it is not challenging the Commission’s decision on the LUP or seeking a 14 “redo” of its failed lawsuit against the Commission, but rather is challenging the City’s action to 15 accept the Commission’s decision. (BBC Opp., p. 5.) This is inaccurate. The Petition directs each 16 claimed statutory and constitutional violation to both “Defendants” City and Commission. (E.g., 17 Petition, ¶¶ 32-33, 45-46, 51-52, 57-58.) And, as to whether declaratory relief and traditional 18 mandate are appropriate remedies here (discussed further below), Petitioner erroneously asserts that 19 a “section 1085 writ petition against the Commission is appropriate, since it (along with the City)
20 co-drafted the LUP policies at issue and the Commission was acting in a ‘quasi-legislative’
21 function when doing so.” (BBC Opp., p. 8.)

22 Petitioner additionally notes that in Homeowner’s Association of Solana Beach & Tennis
23 Club v. City of Solana Beach, this Court ruled that the case against the City could go forward
24 without the Commission as a party. (BBC Opp., p. 1.) At the time, the Court’s decisions in the 25 BBC and Steinberg cases against the Commission were on appeal, and thus were not final.
26 Thereafter, the appeals were dismissed, and the Court’s ruling in those cases is now final and thus
27 res judicata here. (City RJN, Exhs. 1-2.)

28 ///

1 In short, the Commission adopted the suggested modifications to LUP policies and made its
2 record in doing so. Petitioner failed to properly challenge the Commission’s decision, asserting the 3 statutory and constitutional claims now raised here as to those LUP policies. As a matter of law,
4 Petitioner is not entitled to a redo by directing its collateral attack on the Commission’s decision at 5 the City. Res judicata bars the First, Third, Fourth, and Fifth Causes of Action.

6 III. THE COMPLAINT AND PETITION FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION
7 FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF OR TRADITIONAL MANDATE

8 Petitioner argues it was entitled to challenge the LUP and LUP amendment policies at issue
9 in this case by way of declaratory relief and traditional mandate. It is, however, well-settled that 10 the sole and proper remedy for judicial review of a challenge to a Commission decision approving 11 an LCP, or the LUP component of the LCP, is an action in administrative mandamus pursuant to 12 CCP Section 1094.5. (San Mateo Coastal Landowners Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38
13 Cal.App.4th 523, 558 [rejecting a challenge to a Commission decision to certify an LCP by 14 declaratory relief and traditional mandate].) This follows from Section 30801 of the Coastal Act, 15 which provides: “Any aggrieved person shall have a right to judicial review of any decision or 16 action of the Commission by filing a writ of mandate in accordance with Section 1094.5.” (Italics 17 added.)

18 Petitioner argues the remedy in Section 30801 is just for challenges to “permit” conditions, 19 not to “laws” – i.e., a Commission action in the LCP context. (BBC Opp., p. 8.) That, however, is 20 not what Section 30801 states. Section 30801 says “a right to judicial review of any decision or 21 action of the Commission.” (Italics added.) Case law is equally clear that when the Commission
22 reviews an LCP and its policies for consistency with the Coastal Act, it acts in a quasi-judicial role, 23 and that can only be challenged in an action in administrative mandamus. (San Mateo Coastal 24 Landowners’ Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal.App.4th 523, 558; City of Chula Vista v.
25 Superior Court (1982) 133 Cal.App.3d 472, 488.) There is no authority to the contrary. As stated
26 in San Mateo Coastal Landowners:

27 “It is established the Commission acts in a quasi-judicial role when it reviews a LCP or 28 LCP amendment for consistency with the Coastal Act. [Citation.] Consequently, challenge to the Commission’s action in LCP certification decisions is via Code of Civil Procedure, section 1094.5.”(38 Cal.App.4th at 558.)

1 Petitioner’s assertion that the Commission’s involvement was “clearly ‘quasi-legislative’” is,
2 therefore, flatly wrong. (BBC Opp., p. 6, l. 21.)

3 Equally wrong is Petitioner’s assertion, noted above, that the Commission is merely a “co-
4 drafter” of the LUP policies and that somehow makes its role quasi-legislative. (BBC Opp., p. 8.)
5 Rejecting the argument the Commission acts in a legislative manner when it reviews the 6 consistency of an LCP for its conformity with the Coastal Act, the Court in City of Chula Vista v.
7 Superior Court, supra, 133 Cal.App.3rd at 489, explained:

8 “. . .The entire scheme of the [Coastal] Act provides for the initial planning to be done
9 locally and the final approval to be done by a statewide agency with an eye to statewide
10 policies and limitations. The function of the statewide agency would be trivial and its 11 existence unjustifiable if its function were purely to review City’s action for rationality, for 12 conceivable conformity to state standards rather than actual compliance. Clearly, the 13 Commission must exercise its independent judgment to decide if such conformity has been 14 achieved because that decision cannot be completed delegated to the local entity where it is 15 likely to be subject to local economic and political pressures which cannot so readily
16 influence the Commission.”

17 Petitioner also erroneously dismisses the City of Chula Vista case as one in which the 18 Commission “played a purely reviewer’s role.” (BBC Opp, p. 8.) The Court in City of Chula Vista 19 noted:

20 “On May 4, 1979, the regional commission suggested extensive revisions and amendments
21 to the City’s LCP and approved the program conditioned upon such revisions. The plan 22 with the regional commission’s recommendations was submitted for further review to the 23 Commission, and City objected to the revisions before the statewide Commission.
24 However, after extensive hearings, the state Commission on September 18, 1979, adopted
25 some of the proposed findings of the regional commission and granted conditional approval
26 of the LCP.” (133 Cal.App.3d, at 477.)

27 The Commission’s action here was no different. As Petitioner alleges in its Petition: “At its 28 hearing on March 7, 2012, the Commission denied certification of the City’s LUP and instead
29 certified a different LUP that contained substantial modifications demanded by Commission staff.”
(Petition, ¶ 17.)

30 Petitioner further argues that Section 30801 is not the exclusive remedy here and that 31 Section 30800 of the Coastal Act makes clear that the remedy in Section 30801 “shall be in 32 addition to any other remedies available at law.” (BBC Opp., p. 8.) As previously noted, case law
33 establishes that judicial review of an LUP decision is by way of administrative mandamus
34 (San Mateo Coastal Landowners, supra, 38 Cal.App.4th at 558.) Section 30800 also cannot avoid

1 the bar of res judicata, as here. In Ham, supra, 210 Cal.App.3d at 1497, the Court addressed the res
2 judicata effect of a final administrative decision and explained: “Section 30801 did not eliminate 3 any prior remedies available to aggrieved landowners and thus section 30800 is not implicated.
4 Rather, long-standing principles of res judicata apply to affect the timing of the additional
5 remedies. We do not discern in section 30800 any legislative intent to abrogate this well-settled
6 doctrine.” (Id. at 1497; italics added.) Thus, it is irrelevant whether the City’s subsequent action to 7 accept the Commission’s suggested modifications is termed “administrative” or “quasi-
8 legislative.” Res judicata, addressed above, is fatal to this action against the City insofar as it
9 impermissibly seeks to collaterally challenge the original LUP policies required by the 10 Commission.

11 Lastly, Petitioner contends that under the Coastal Act, declaratory and injunctive relief are 12 broadly available to review possible “violations” of the Coastal Act, citing Coastal Act Section 13 30803. (BBC Opp., p. 8.) While that is true, the “violations” referred to in Section 30803 are those 14 associated with enforcement – activities undertaken without a permit, contrary to a permit or term
15 thereof, or contrary to a Commission cease and desist order or restoration order. Section 30803(a)
16 provides, in relevant part: “Any person may maintain an action for declaratory and equitable relief
17 to restrain any violation of this division, of a cease and desist order issued pursuant to Section 18 30809 or 30810, or of a restoration order issued pursuant to Section 30811.” (California Coastal 19 Com. v. Tahmassebi (1998) 69 Cal.App.4th 255, 259.) A Commission action to approve an LCP,
20 LUP, or LUPA is not a “violation” of the Coastal Act. Indeed, Petitioner’s interpretation of the Act
21 would render Section 30801, providing for the administrative mandamus remedy, meaningless.
22 Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal.3d 158, also provides no
23 assistance here. That case involved a challenge to certain “guidelines” adopted by the 24 Commission, and the Court held the guidelines were “unquestionably” quasi-legislative, as 25 opposed to quasi-judicial or adjudicatory,” and therefore were reviewable by an action for 26 declaratory relief or traditional mandate. (Id. at 168-169.) The decision at issue here was 27 unquestionably quasi-judicial in nature.

28 ///

1 IV. THE FOURTH AND SEVENTH CAUSES OF ACTION FAIL TO STATE A CAUSE
2 OF ACTION FOR “UNCONSTITUTIONAL CONDITIONS”

3 It is settled that a takings claim, as alleged in the Fourth and Seventh Causes of Action, may 4 not be made in a challenge to the approval of a land use plan. (San Mateo Coastal Landowners’
5 Assn, supra, 38 Cal.App.4th 523, 546; Sierra Club v. California Coastal Com. (1993) 12
6 Cal.App.3d 602, 618.) The California courts have long held that a takings claim must be made, if 7 at all, at the permit stage. There is no case to the contrary.

8 Petitioner’s attempt to distinguish the San Mateo Coastal Landowners and Sierra Club
9 cases is misplaced. (BBC Opp., pp. 12-13.) In Sierra Club, the Court rejected a takings claim in 10 the context of a Commission decision approving a county land use plan. The Court cited Section 11 30010, which states the Coastal Act “is not intended, and shall not be construed as authorizing the 12 commission . . . to exercise [its] power to grant or deny a permit in a manner which will take or 13 damage private property for public use.” The Court explained that the Section “appears designed
14 to foreclose any claim that the Coastal Act authorizes takings without compensation, a construction
15 that would leave the Act open to facial challenge.” (12 Cal.App.4th at 618.) It then held:
16 “[S]ection 30010 speaks of permit-stage actions, not LUP or LCP approvals. This is consonant
17 with the judicial view that takings decisions must await as-applied challenges and are usually not 18 ripe until the permit stage.” (Id.) Petitioner ignores this holding, but it is dispositive here.

19 San Mateo County Landowners is equally dispositive. There, the Court rejected a facial 20 challenge to an LCP policy requiring an applicant for a land division to grant the county a
21 conservation/open space or agricultural easement as a condition of approval on grounds it
22 constituted a due process violation and a taking. The LCP stated that “provisions of this ordinance
23 shall not be applicable to the extent, but only to the extent, that they would violate the constitution
24 or laws of the” U.S. or California. (38 Cal.App.4th at 547.) The Court noted first that the county
25 “has the flexibility to avoid potentially unconstitutional application of easement requirements.”
26 (Id.) The same is equally true here. Under the Coastal Act, an LCP consists of two distinct parts –
27 the LUP, as here, and the implementation or zoning ordinances. (Yost v. Thomas (1984) 36 Cal.3d 28 561, 566.) Here, the Commission has certified only the former. The LCP’s implementation or

1 zoning ordinances have not yet been prepared, submitted to the Commission, or acted upon, and
2 thus, as in San Mateo County Landowners, it cannot be said at this point that an uncompensated
3 taking would necessarily occur. Further, consistent with Sierra Club, the Court explained that an 4 “as applied” challenge would fail on ripeness grounds because the easement requirement “would 5 not arise unless and until a property owner submitted an application to divide land in the coastal
6 zone” – i.e., at the permit stage. (38 Cal.App.3d at 549.)

7         Petitioner points out that under San Remo Hotel, L.P. v. City and County of San Francisco
8 (2002) 27 Cal.4th 643, 673, a facial constitutional challenge is permissible where the law is shown
9 to be unconstitutional “in the generality or great majority of cases.” (BBC Opp., p. 10.) It also 10 cites Koontz v. St. Johns River Water Mgmt. Dist. (2013) 133 S. Ct. 2586, where the High Court
11 held that the unconstitutional conditions doctrine applies when government seeks to pressure
12 property owners to accept an uncompensated taking of their property for public use. (BBC Opp., p.
13 13.) But neither case is apposite here. First, as shown above, Petitioner’s effort to collaterally
14 attack the Commission’s LUP decision – what Petitioner misleadingly refers to as a facial
15 constitutional challenge – is barred by res judicata. Second, Petitioner simply ignores the point 16 made in San Mateo County Landowners. Here, the Commission approved only an LUP without the 17 second part of the LCP – the zoning ordinance or other implementation measures. It cannot be said
18 with certainty that a taking will ever occur. Until the zoning ordinance and implementation are 19 formulated, reviewed and approved, it cannot be shown that the LUP is categorically
20 unconstitutional. The claim is premature, and Petitioner’s “unconstitutional conditions” claims –
21 the Fourth and Seventh Causes of Action – are barred for that reason.

22 V. THE PETITION IS UNCERTAIN BECAUSE IT CONFLATES LUP POLICIES
23 NOW IMMUNE FROM CHALLENGE WITH SUBSEQUENT LUP
24 AMENDMENTS

25         In June 2014, the Commission approved the LUPA, with suggested modifications. Rather 26 than specifically challenge those amended policies, Petitioner chose to lump all of its claims
27 together by reference to the “LUP.” Consequently, the Petition does not differentiate between 28 policies that have been amended and policies that have not. As the City’s opening memorandum

1 explains, LUP policies 4.19, 4.22, and 4.40 (which was simply renumbered) were not changed by
2 the amendments to the LUP. Petitioner's challenge to those policies is both time-barred and barred
3 by res judicata. (Patrick Media Group, Inc v. California Coastal Com., supra, 9 Cal.App.4th at 4 607.) Petitioner's response is that the City produced a chart/exhibit demonstrating that and can 5 figure it out. (BBC Opp., p. 14.) That, however, misses the point. The claims directed to those 6 policies are barred, and a demurrer for uncertainty may be used to expose the bar of res judicata.
7 (Powell v. Lampton (1938) 30 Cal.App.2d 43, 47.). Because the Petition conflates a challenge to 8 the LUPA with a renewed challenge to the original certified LUP policies, which are now immune
9 from collateral attack, the demurrer for uncertainty should be sustained as to the First, Third,
10 Fourth, and Fifth Causes of Action.<sup>1</sup>

11 VI. CONCLUSION

12 Accordingly, for the foregoing reasons and those set forth in the City's opening
13 memorandum, the City of Solana Beach respectfully requests the Court to sustain its demurrer
14 without leave to amend as to (1) claims regarding the original LUP, (2) claims for declaratory relief
15 and traditional mandate, and (3) premature claims regarding purported "unconstitutional 16 conditions." The City further requests that the City's demurrer be sustained with leave to amend to 17 permit Petitioner to replead this case as to the LUPA alone and to eliminate the confusion resulting 18 from Petitioner's conflation of the LUP and LUPA policies.

19 Dated: February 20, 2015

Respectfully submitted,

RICHARDS, WATSON & GERSHON

21 By:
22 Steven H. Kaufmann
23 Attorneys for Defendant and Respondent
CITY OF SOLANA BEACH

24 <sup>1</sup> The Second Amended Complaint and Petition again names the Councilmembers and City Manager but 25 sets forth no charging allegations as to those individuals and concedes they were previously dismissed from 26 the case. (Petition, ¶¶ 5-6.) The Councilmembers and City Manager are neither indispensable nor 27 necessary parties to this proceeding (Garfield v. Board of Medical Examiners (1950) 99 Cal.App.2d 219, 28 231; Moran v. Bd. of Medical Examiners (1948) 32 Cal.2d 301, 314-315), and, as public officials against whom no relief is sought, they should not be forced to bear the stigma of being sued. To eliminate confusion, the demurrer should be sustained as to those individuals without leave to amend.

PROOF OF SERVICE

Beach & Bluff Conservancy v. City of Solana Beach, et al.
San Diego Superior Court
Case Number 37-2013-00046561-CU-WM-NC

I, Marcella Sanchez, declare:

I am a resident of the state of California and over the age of eighteen years and not a party to the within action. My business address is 355 South Grand Avenue, 40th Floor, Los Angeles, California 90071-3101. On February 20, 2015, I served the within document(s) described as:

CITY OF SOLANA BEACH'S REPLY MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER
TO SECOND AMENDED COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF AND PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE

in the interested parties in this action as stated below:

James S. Burling, Esq.
Jennifer F. Thompson, Esq.
PACIFIC LEGAL FOUNDATION
930 G Street
Sacramento, CA 95814
jsb@pacificlegal.org
jft@pacificlegal.org

Jonathan C. Corn, Esq
Vincent J. Axelson, Esq..
AXELSON & CORN, P.C.
160 Chesterfield Drive, Suite 201
Cardiff by the Sea, CA 92007
joncorn@axelsoncorn.com

Kamala D. Harris
Attorney General of California
Jamee Jordan Patterson
Supervising Deputy Attorney General
110 West "A" Street, Suite 1100
San Diego, CA 92101
Jamee.Patterson@doj.ca.gov

(BY MAIL) By placing a true copy of the foregoing document(s) in a sealed envelope addressed as set forth above. I placed each such envelope for collection and mailing following ordinary business practices. I am readily familiar with this Firm's practice for collection and processing of correspondence for mailing. Under that practice, the correspondence would be deposited with the United States Postal Service on that same day, with postage thereon fully prepaid at Los Angeles, California, in the ordinary course of business. I am aware that on motion of the party served, service is presumed invalid if postal cancellation date or postage meter date is more than one day after date of deposit for mailing in affidavit.

(BY E-MAIL) By transmitting a true copy of the foregoing document(s) to the e-mail addresses set forth above.

1 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the
2 foregoing is true and correct.

3 Executed on February 20, 2015, at Los Angeles, California.

4
5 _____
6 Marcella Sanchez
7 (Type or print name)

8 Marcella Sanchez
9 _____
10 (Signature)