Civil Action No. 2:24-cv-02377-JAD-MDC

REPLY IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

INTRODUCTION

The Nevada Real Estate Division's (Division) [1] Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment rests on two faulty premises that the United States Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit have repeatedly rejected. First, the Division argues that Nevada's in-state office and work requirements are not discriminatory simply because they apply to everyone. Dkt. No. 39 at 5, 8–9. Yet Courts have repeatedly held that a law is discriminatory when it requires an out-of-state citizen to duplicate their operations in a second state to compete.

Second, the Division claims these requirements are necessary for consumer protection and audits. Id. at 5, 12. The record tells a different story. In an era of digital records, electronic communications, and remote audits, the Division's asserted interests are purely illusory. The Division has identified no evidence—because there is none—showing that an empty, compulsory in-state office meaningfully advances consumer protection or modern regulatory oversight.

Despite full discovery, the Division cannot point to a single instance in which its in-state mandates protected a Nevada consumer, facilitated a modern audit, or served any legitimate regulatory purpose at all. What the record instead reveals is a protectionist scheme that operates as a naked barrier to entry for out-of-state brokers like Mr. Eisenberg. Because the State has failed to demonstrate a legitimate local benefit that justifies its discriminatory mandate under any applicable tier of Commerce Clause analysis, Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment should be granted. Dkt. No. 30.

ARGUMENT

I. Nevada's In-State Office Mandate Is Per Se Discriminatory

Nevada's in-state office requirement is a per se violation of the dormant Commerce Clause doctrine because it functions as a geographic barrier that forces out-of-state brokers to duplicate their business infrastructure in the state to compete. A state law is per se invalid when it "directly regulates or discriminates against interstate commerce, or when its effect is to favor in-state economic interests over out-of-state interests." Rosenblatt v. City of Santa Monica, 940 F.3d 439, 444 (9th Cir. 2019) (quoting Brown-Forman Distillers Corp. v. N.Y. State Liquor Auth., 476 U.S. 573, 579 (1986)) (emphasis added). A statute discriminates in practical effect if it causes out-of-state residents to suffer a "competitive disadvantage as compared to other similarly situated" in-state residents. Int'l Franchise Ass'n, Inc. v. City of Seattle, 803 F.3d 389, 405 (9th Cir. 2015). Nevada's requirement that Eisenberg maintain a physical footprint in the state—when there is no business reason to do so—does nothing to regulate how he practices his profession in the state; it is just a mandate that he duplicate out-of-state infrastructure as a prerequisite for entering the Nevada market.

[1] Defendants are state officials sued in their official capacities. For ease of reference, this Memorandum refers to them collectively as the "Division."

The Division's lead defense of the challenged scheme is that it is facially neutral and requires all brokers to comply with in-state mandates. Dkt. No. 39 at 5, 7–8. This argument has been repeatedly rejected by courts nationwide. It is black letter law that a facially neutral law is per se invalid if "its obvious effect is prejudicial to out of state brokers, who must duplicate the expense of maintaining an office in [the state] in order to do business with its residents." Underhill Assocs., Inc. v. Coleman, 504 F. Supp. 1147, 1151 (E.D. Va. 1981). Nevada's law does exactly this: it permits an in-state broker to use its existing infrastructure while requiring Eisenberg to pay a brick-and-mortar entry fee for a market that his online business can serve from his primary office in New Jersey.

The Division's invocation of hypothetical overseas brokers is a red herring. The Commerce Clause protects the national economic union by forbidding discrimination against out-of-state actors, and nothing about the regulation of foreign commerce, which is governed by different constitutional principles, is at issue here. See Dkt. No. 39 at 8. The question before this Court—like many courts before it—is whether a state may constitutionally require a citizen of another state to maintain a redundant physical presence as a prerequisite for interstate commerce. Time and again, courts have struck down such mandates as violative of the Commerce Clause. Granholm v. Heald, 544 U.S. 460, 474 (2005) (striking down a law requiring out-of-state wineries to establish a physical presence to compete); Underhill Assocs., Inc., 504 F. Supp. at 1151 (invalidating office requirement where nonresidents "must duplicate the expense of maintaining an office" to do business); Ga. Ass'n of Realtors, Inc. v. Ala. Real Est. Comm'n, 748 F. Supp. 1487, 1493–94 (M.D. Ala. 1990) (invalidating a requirement that nonresident brokers maintain a "place of business" in Alabama).

The Division's attempt to distinguish one such case based on distance—arguing that a 2,500-mile gap somehow makes a duplicate office less burdensome than a five-mile one—is absurd. Dkt. No. 39 at 8–9.

If anything, the opposite is true: a 2,500-mile separation imposes far greater logistical, financial, and operational burdens than a mere five-mile one ever could. In any event, the discriminatory cost of the in-state office mandate has no bearing on the distance of a nonresident's primary operations from Nevada, and the State offered no evidence that distance has any relevance at all.

The Division's suggestion that Eisenberg could comply by simply owning or renting a "secondary or vacation residence" response proves too much. If that's all that is needed for compliance, then the purported office requirement is nothing more than a residency mandate in disguise. Id. at 5. This is precisely the argument that the Supreme Court struck down in Granholm because it forces "an out-of-state firm 'to become a resident in order to compete on equal terms.'" 544 U.S. at 475 (quoting Halliburton Oil Well Cementing Co. v. Reily, 373 U.S. 64, 72 (1963)). Whether the duplicate office is across a border or across the country, the Division has provided no evidence that this forced expense provides any functional benefit to a virtual broker. Consequently, Nevada's scheme is per se invalid because it serves only to penalize Plaintiff's out-of-state residency.

II. The Scheme's Mandates Are Unconstitutional "Local Processing Requirements"

A state statute is per se invalid under the dormant Commerce Clause doctrine if it functions as a local processing requirement—"requiring business operations to be performed in the home State that could more efficiently be performed elsewhere." Pike v. Bruce Church, Inc., 397 U.S. 137, 145 (1970). The Division argues that the challenged scheme is not a "local processing requirement" because it takes a "practical approach" to enforcement, asserting that they only require a physical presence if an investigator or client requests an in-person visit. Dkt. No. 39 at 9. They are wrong.

First, the argument is factually false. The challenged laws do not permit practical enforcement; they are absolute. They command that the broker's business must be conducted from the designated in-state location. N.R.S. §§ 645.510, 645.550. The Division's promise to only enforce the law in contravention of these "impracticably literal interpretations" does not cure their constitutional defect. Dkt. No. 39 at 2. It would also put brokers into significant doubt about what their legal responsibilities are, putting them at risk of enforcement if they happen to get a client who requests a private office. In other words, the Division expects brokers to operate in a twilight zone of discretionary mercy, where their compliance depends less on clear law than on the Division's unpredictable mood and the identity of the next client who walks through the door.

The Division's attempt to justify these local process requirements on the ground that they promote "access" fails for similar reasons. Dkt. No. 39 at 10–11. Having already conceded that rigid enforcement would be "impracticable," the Division now pivots to claiming that forced physical offices somehow enhance accessibility—a position that collapses under even modest scrutiny. While the State relies on Tolchin v. Supreme Court of the State of N.J. to argue that physical offices ensure accessibility, that case is clearly inapposite. 111 F.3d 1099 (3d Cir. 1997). There, the Third Circuit upheld an in-state office requirement for attorneys specifically to prevent the "serious difficulty" of locating counsel in the midst of active, time-sensitive litigation. Id. at 1109. Here, by contrast, Eisenberg's clients voluntarily choose his virtual model precisely because it eliminates the unnecessary costs and geographic barriers of a traditional physical broker office—making the Division's "access" argument not just wrong, but the very opposite of reality.

The Division cannot save an unconstitutional mandate by promising to ignore its own mandatory text. The demand that out-of-state brokers perform their business functions in Nevada is a textbook unconstitutional "local processing requirement." C & A Carbone, Inc. v. Town of Clarkstown, 511 U.S. 383, 392 (1994).

III. Even Under the Pike Balancing Test, Nevada's Mandates Are Unconstitutional

Even if this Court were to find that Nevada's in-state office requirement is not per se discriminatory, the mandate still fails under the Pike balancing test because the Division imposes a massive burden on interstate commerce for the sake of purely illusory local benefits. Under Pike, a facially neutral law is unconstitutional if "the burden imposed on [interstate] commerce is clearly excessive in relation to the putative local benefits." Pike, 397 U.S. at 142. Here, the record confirms that the State's putative benefits are non-existent, while the burden on innovative out-of-state brokers is significant.

The Division tries to cabin Georgia Ass'n of Realtors, Inc. v. Alabama Real Estate Commission as a border proximity case, arguing that a five-mile distance from a border makes a duplicate office more "wasteful" than the 2,500-mile gap Eisenberg faces here. Dkt. No. 39 at 12. That characterization is both inaccurate and irrelevant. The Georgia court did not base its ruling on mileage or proximity to a border; it rested squarely on the "considerable burden" imposed by the in-state office requirement. 748 F. Supp. at 1493. Nowhere did the court treat distance from another state as a meaningful variable in its Pike analysis. Instead, the court focused on the core reality: Alabama's law required a broker to maintain a "place of business" from which he "operates"—a physical presence requirement the court found unduly burdensome. Id. at 1493–94. Tellingly, the court concluded that the state's legitimate interest in audits and governance could be fully served by "less burdensome or discriminatory measures" than mandating a brick-and-mortar office. Id. at 1494.

The Division's fallback justifications—jurisdiction, governance, and "confidence in Nevada's real estate industry" are speculative makeweights.

Long-arm statutes already reach out-of-state businesses that voluntarily do business in Nevada—especially those licensed by the state. See Nev. Rev. Stat. § 14.065 (Nevada's long-arm statute, which allows courts of the state to exercise jurisdiction over a party to a civil action on any basis not inconsistent with the state or federal constitutions). A physical office adds nothing meaningful to that authority.

The governance and audit rationale fares even worse: it is affirmatively disproven by the Division's own testimony. The Division admitted it has performed zero in-person office audits in nearly ten years, relying instead on precisely the digital records and electronic communications that Eisenberg already uses and maintains. Bruce Dep. 53:1–3, 55:1–9 (Exhibit 1). As other courts have recognized, these regulatory interests can be fully satisfied by "less burdensome or discriminatory measures" than a forced brick-and-mortar entry fee. Georgia Ass'n of Realtors, Inc., 748 F. Supp. at 1494.

Finally, the State cannot justify the scheme under the guise of consumer protection or industry confidence, as its own enforcement history proves a physical presence provides no shield against professional misconduct. The Division's reliance on three disciplinary cases collapses under the slightest scrutiny. None of them shows any causal link between the absence of an in-state office and actual consumer harm. Dkt. No. 39 at 5–6. In the case of Marty Zabib, the core misconduct—misappropriation of client funds from his personal bank account—occurred entirely independent of whether he maintained a Nevada office. Exhibit 2 at RPD0015–RPD0018. The charge for failing to maintain a place of business was tacked on only after the Division discovered Zabib's office had already closed. Id.

It was a collateral paperwork violation, not the source of any consumer injury.

The same is true of Linda Akiki. Her primary violations—issuing bad checks and misappropriating funds—had no connection whatsoever to the location or existence of an office. Id. at RDP0024–RDP0036. The lack of an in-state office was, again, merely a secondary, technical infraction that played no role in enabling or concealing the misconduct. Finally, Rich Baron's case is even more damning for the State: the only violation alleged was his failure to maintain a definite place of business at all (in-state or out-of-state). Id. at 6–8. Yet even here, there is no suggestion of consumer harm flowing from that violation—only the regulatory offense itself. And when it needed to reach Baron, it did so successfully at an out-of-state mailing address and by email. Id. at 7.

Crucially, once the Division needed to reach these brokers, it did so successfully without any in-state physical office—using exactly the same remote and out-of-state tools Eisenberg already employs. Id. at 7, 16. This record directly undermines any claim that an in-state brick-and-mortar requirement is necessary for oversight, contact, or consumer protection. If the Division can effectively regulate and sanction licensees who have no definite place of business whatsoever, it can certainly do so when an out-of-state broker maintains clear, accessible digital and remote operations.

CONCLUSION

Because there are no genuine issues of material fact and Eisenberg is entitled to judgment as a matter of law, this Court should grant Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment. Dkt. No. 30.

30(b)(6) REMOTE STREAMING DEPOSITION OF

REBECCA BRUCE

TAKEN ON

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 2025

10:22 A.M.

THE REPORTER: We are on the record at 10:22 a.m.

Ms. Bruce, will you please raise your right hand?

Do you affirm, under penalty of perjury that the testimony you are about to give will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth?

THE DEPONENT: Yes. I do.

THE REPORTER: Will each attorney please state their name and whom they represent.

MR. SU: I'll begin. Phil Su, Nevada bar number 10450, I'm with the Nevada Attorney General's Office on behalf of defendants, Kristopher Sanchez, as director of Department of Business and Industry; Darrell Plummer, Nevada Real Estate Commissioner; Donna Ruthe, also Commissioner; Forrest Barbee, also Commissioner; David Tina, Commissioner; and William Bradley Spires, Commissioner.

MR. BEYER: Good morning. Brandon Beyer with Pacific Legal Foundation. We represent plaintiff, Derek Eisenberg, in this case.

THE REPORTER: Thank you. You may proceed.

MR. BEYER: Okay. Good morning. Good morning to you all. Good afternoon to myself. My name is Brandon Byer from Pacific Legal Foundation. Like I said, I, along with my colleague, Anastasia Boden, who's also on this call, represent the plaintiff in this case, Derek Eisenberg.

REBECCA BRUCE, the deponent herein, having been first duly affirmed to tell the truth, was examined, and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Ms. Bruce, now that we're on the record, could I have you state your full name again, first and last, and spell it?

A. Yes. It's Rebecca Bruce, R-E-B-E-C-C-A B-R-U-C-E.

Q. Thank you, Ms. Bruce. Before we begin, I just need to go over some preliminary matters. This is a deposition, which means you are under oath, just as if you were in a court of law, so it's crucial that you testify truthfully. Do you understand that you are under oath and are required to provide truthful testimony?

A. I do.

Q. Great. The court reporter is creating a transcript of everything said today. Because of this, please provide verbal answers. So not a -- the head or a shake of the head won't be captured in the record. So please instead answer affirmatively "Yes" or "No" in those cases so that it can be captured for the record.

We also, like the court reporter said, just need to be mindful of speaking over one another. So I'll -- I'll wait until you finish answering if you wait until I -- I finish questioning and vice versa. Is that all understood?

A. Understood.

Q. If you don't understand any question, just please let me know and I'm happy to rephrase it. If you do answer a question, I will assume that you understood it. Is that fair?

A. That's fair.

Q. Your attorney, to your side, may object from time to time, so unless your attorney instructs you not to answer, you're still required to answer the question after the objection has been noted for the record. Do you understand?

A. Understood.

Q. Finally, if you need to take a break at any point, just let me know. I only ask that you answer any pending questions that we have at that point before we take the break. Understood?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there any reason you are unable to testify fully and truthfully today?

A. There's no reason.

Q. Okay. And just a terminology thing, before we get started, can we agree that when I say "the division," I'm referring to the Nevada Real Estate Division?

A. Yes. That's understood.

Q. Okay. Okay. I'm just going to jump into some more preliminary stuff, but more directed towards you in terms of your role and preparation for today. So are you currently employed, Ms. Bruce, with the Nevada Real Estate Division.

A. I am.

Q. Okay. And what is your current position?

A. I am the chief compliance investigator.

Q. How long have you held that position?

A. For approximately three months.

Q. Okay. And you mentioned before we got started that you changed around some roles recently. Were there any roles previously at the division that you held?

A. Yes.

Q. What were those roles?

A. Most recently, I was the program manager for the appraisal and inspectors of structures and energy auditors section. Prior to that, I was a compliance audit investigator for the real estate compliance section.

Q. Okay. And approximately how long did you hold each of those roles?

A. The program manager for appraisal was approximately a year and a couple of months. And then compliance audit investigator, I was for almost about six years --

Q. Okay. So --

A. -- five and a half to six years.

Q. Sorry?

A. Five and half to six years.

Q. Got it. Okay. So you've been with the division for about half dozen years, maybe a little more?

A. In fact, it will be eight years in January.

Q. Could you -- turning back to your current role, could you briefly describe your duties as chief compliance investigator?

A. I review all complaints that come to the division from the public, and I assign them to investigators to investigate, and then I also answer questions for the public.

Q. Okay. How many investigators do you have underneath you?

A. I have five.

Q. Are they split into different roles, capacities, types of complaints?

A. For compliance, I -- I -- and I'm sorry. Let me correct that. I have six investigators. I have one investigator that is designated for appraisal complaints, and the other remaining five are designated for real estate compliance and timeshare compliance. One is in the northern office, and the rest are located in Las Vegas.

Q. Okay. So those five that deal on the broker side, are they -- it's geographically disbursed, so you have one on the northern office and then the other are chiefly with your office?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. And in terms of your educational history, can you just lay that out?

A. I have some college education.

Q. Okay. Okay.

MR. BEYER: I'm going to introduce for the record Exhibit 1. I'm going to put this in the chat, as well, for everyone to hopefully see.

(WHEREUPON, Exhibit 1 was marked for identification.)

THE REPORTER: Exhibit 1.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. This is the notice of the 30(b)(6) deposition that we're in today. Ms. Bruce, is this document familiar to you?

THE REPORTER: I'm just bringing it up. Sorry.

MR. SU: Sorry. Just for clarification there, Brandon. Do you want to share screen on the item or do you want us to download it?

MR. BEYER: I'm -- I'm putting them in the -- in the Zoom chat.

MR. BEYER: Okay. Okay. Very good. Yeah.

MR. BEYER: Just -- just for -- yeah. Just for your knowledge, I -- I think we'll probably be at half a dozen or less exhibits --

MR. SU: Okay.

MR. BEYER: -- today. So it might just be easier to just do it this way.

MR. SU: Very good. What I might do then is I'll -- I'll join the Zoom chat on the -- on this personal computer I have in front of me, open the exhibits here so that she can look at them here while we have a visual view on the screen here.

MR. BEYER: Okay. Okay.

MR. SU: Go ahead and continue your questions and --

MR. BEYER: Okay.

MR. SU: -- I think it was email deposition.

THE DEPONENT: Yes. I did receive that. Yes.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Okay. Did you review it for today?

A. I did, yes.

Q. So this is the -- I'm just gonna make sure I have the title here, The notice of rule 30(b)(6) deposition of Rebecca Bruce. On the third and fourth page of the document, we have several topics laid out for you to testify to today. Are you familiar with those topics?

A. Let me just review them again. I'm sorry.

Q. Yeah. That's fine.

A. Yes. I'm familiar with those topics.

Q. Okay. And you understand that you've been designated to testify today, not as an individual, but on behalf of the Nevada Department of Business and Industry and the Nevada Real Estate Division?

A. Yes, I understand that.

Q. And you understand that your answers will be binding on the department and the division.

A. Yes.

Q. What did you do to prepare for this deposition today?

A. I reviewed our statutes again, just to be sure I was familiarized with them, and reviewed our previous cases to see if there was any that fell under those statutes.

Q. Did you speak with anyone in preparation for the deposition?

A. I briefly spoke with my attorney, yes.

Q. Your attorney sitting next to you?

A. Yes. Mr. Su.

Q. Okay. Thank you. Did you review any documents that -- to prepare for the testimony today on the topics listed; you mentioned that you looked over some prior cases?

A. I briefly just looked through our -- our website history, or our database history, to see what cases may have been brought -- brought up, but no documents specifically.

Q. Okay. Is that a database? Is it a history of the complaints?

A. It's just a tracking of the complaints that were opened and the date that they were closed.

Q. Understood. Are you prepared to provide the department's testimony on all the topics listed in Exhibit 1?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I'm going to move into the topics individually. I will have another exhibit here to mark for the record.

MR. BEYER: This will be Exhibit 2. It is Nevada revised statute section 645.550.

(WHEREUPON, Exhibit 2 was marked for identification.)

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. I'll gives you a second to pull it up. But let me know when you pull it up if you recognize this document?

A. Yes, I recognize this.

Q. Okay. How would you describe the document?

A. It is the NRS 645.550.

Q. Okay. It's -- and it's the Nevada statute that governs that brokers are required to maintain a place of business in the state; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Subsection 1 of that statute requires that every broker have a, quote, "definite place of business" within the state. What is the division's understanding of a definite place of business?

A. A physical location where the business is located.

Q. Okay. So the statute specifies that this place must be a room, or rooms, used for the transaction of real estate business. What does the division consider to be a room for purposes of this statute?

A. A physical location. It could be an office. It could be an office building. It could be a room in somebody's personal home. It's just a room -- a room to --a physical location.

Q. Yeah. And -- yeah. Sorry to have you define what a room is, but -- so for -- for example, does a desk in a large open plan co-working space qualify as a room for purposes of the statute?

A. It does have to be a private location to conduct business if requested by the client or the public.

Q. Okay. Oh, sorry. So -- so the threshold for a room, in the eyes of the division, would -- there would be some privacy element to meeting that threshold?

A. Yes. That doesn't have to be the only room, but there has to be a designated room that can -- can allow for privacy if requested.

Q. Okay. So in -- in the State's motion to dismiss, they noted that Mr. Eisenberg, who we represent in this case, his designated office is a single suite that's shared with 56 other licensed brokers.

So in the division's view, the -- the single suite, that's shared with 57 brokers, is sufficient for the statute?

A. As -- yes. As long as there is an area designated for private conducting of business. So they would have to have, like, a conference room, or a small office area, where somebody could sign paperwork in privacy if that's what they requested.

Q. Okay. So if they had a co-working space, like Mr. Eisenberg, to qualify for this statute, you would still need a separate room or private area where they can conduct more -- business more confidentially?

A. Correct.

Q. Has the department ever enforced this requirement after finding a room was inadequate?

A. To my knowledge, there has been cases where the statute was enforced. I don't know the specifics of those enforcements, what -- what the cases entail. I don't know the specific details of those cases.

Q. Okay. So how many instances are you aware of, let's say in the past five years, that this statute, this provision, was enforced?

A. I'm aware of only one that was in the last five years. I was not the investigator on that case. So again, I don't know the specifics of the case. I just know that there was an administrative fine imposed.

Q. Okay. So there was disciplinary action in the one case over the past five years?

A. Yes. That I'm aware of.

Q. But in that case, you're not aware of the factual background circumstances, what the room looked like?

A. I'm not aware, no.

Q. When -- when the division is conducting an investigation like that, are they following up on complaints, so reactive, or are your investigators proactively going out and enforcing this?

A. It's typically in -- in the result of either a complaint or it was discovered in the process of investigating in unrelated complaints, and we've come across the information through that process.

However, we do have the authority to independently visit offices and do office audits and inspections.

Q. Okay. Do you know, in this one instance, whether this provision was the primary provision that was being investigated or were there other provisions?

A. I don't know. Again, because I was not able to review the actual investigation.

Q. Okay. Do you know the amount of fine that was assessed in that instance?

A. I do.

Q. Okay. How -- how much was it?

A. It was a $500 administrative fine.

Q. A one-time fine?

A. Yes. This one was not a commission hearing or a public formal hearing. It was an administrative sanction that was paid by the respondent. And so --

Q. Okay. When -- sorry, go ahead.

A. Sorry. I was just saying there was no appeal to the fine.

Q. So when the division assesses an administrative fine like that, the broker in that instance, essentially just admits guilt and pays the fine, there's no process that it's gone through with regards to the investigation?

A. It is -- it's a case-by-case situation. But yes, that is a potential outcome.

Q. What -- what specific consumer protection problems was the in-state-office-requirement rule intended to solve?

A. I mean, I don't know the specifics as I didn't enact the statute, or I didn't write the statute, but my understanding is that it is to protect the public from potential harm, potential violations of other statutes, as well as to provide confidence in the industry.

Q. Okay. What other potential violations could the in-state-office requirement prevent?

A. Any number of violations. It just -- it's all case-by-case.

Q. Is there a specific aspect of having a physical office that prevents other potential violations that you all see?

A. Because they would be an in-state office and the -- the division does have the authority to do office inspections and audits, that, I believe, helps deter violations because they know that the division could potentially stop in that office and inspect.

Q. Okay. So in the division's eyes, it's -- it's the -- the threat of -- "threat" might be too strong a word -- the -- we'll -- we'll just use "threat," the prospect of a potential audit at the physical location, in the division's eyes, help ensure compliance with additional requirements for brokers.

MR. SU: Object to the use of -- object to form as to the word "threat." You can answer. You can --

THE DEPONENT: Yes. I -- I -- I would say it wouldn't necessarily be a threat, but just the -- the idea that they could be inspected, and so it -- it creates a sense of I have to do the right thing because I could be inspected at any time.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Does the division go out and proactively conduct these audits to ensure compliance with the place-of-business requirement?

A. We have the authority to do so. However, with staffing at the moment, we have not been able to.

Q. Okay. Are you aware of, any time in the past five years, where investigators have gone out proactively to ensure compliance?

A. Other investigators I'm not aware of. I know, myself, I have.

Q. Okay. How frequently and recently have you gone out to ensure compliance with the in-state-office department?

A. I recently visited an office about two months ago, approximately two months ago. And it -- it wasn't an actual visit, it was a drive-by to check the location.

Q. Okay. So it was an unannounced check?

A. It was verifying that the location was in fact there.

Q. Okay. And so the -- when you go out and do this check, you're just driving by the location? You're not necessarily going into the office?

A. Again, it depends on the situation. In that particular case, it was simply to verify that the location was in the state of Nevada.

Q. Okay. So in this instance, was it an office that you could be confident seeing from the street, that there was a location, a room or rooms, used for the transaction of real estate business for this broker?

A. Again, without giving specifics of the case for confidentiality reasons, this was simply just to verify that a location existed in Nevada and there was signage on the location.

Q. Okay. Would a check like that vary depending on what type of location was listed on the licensee's application, or listed place of business? I -- I -- what I'm thinking is the difference between a single office building with a discrete street number versus, let's say, Mr. Eisenberg's 57-shared co-working space.

A. It would depend on the type of complaints and what the allegations were that were being investigated.

Q. Okay. But -- but this most recent instance, it was sufficient for you to be able to drive by and see that they were in compliance with the statute?

A. In this situation, again, it wasn't specifically for this statute, it was simply to verify if a broker was operating in Nevada.

Q. Okay. How often do you go and make these unannounced checks?

A. I don't think that there's a specific frequency. It just depends on the allegations, and what the actual complaint is, and the -- if we're able to verify it in other ways.

Q. Okay. So let's say in the last year, approximately how many of these checks have you or someone in your office done?

A. Apart from the one that I mentioned previously, that's it.

Q. Okay. So if we brought it now to, let's say, like, the last three years, how often?

A. The only one I'm aware of is the one I mentioned previously.

Q. Are those checks always in response to a complaint that you received, or are you affirmatively going out without complaints coming through?

A. It could be the result of a complaint, but it could also be the result of unrelated -- you know, it's brought to our attention in an unrelated matter.

Q. Has the division determined, in any way, through its own investigations or research, that out-of-state or virtual brokers have harmed Nevada consumers?

A. I'm sorry. Could you repeat that?

Q. Has the division itself, in any way, determined, through its own investigations or research, that out of state or virtual brokers have harmed Nevada consumers?

A. I -- I don't know the specifics, but I -- you know, as far as, if that were the specific reason for the harm. And again, because I'm not aware of specific cases that were brought forward for that reason, I -- I can't comment on that.

Q. Okay. But -- so you're not aware of any complaints that have alleged that?

A. I don't know. No, I'm not aware.

Q. So in the division's view, you mentioned this a little bit in the past, the auspices of -- of compliance with other laws, but what -- what are the purposes of requiring every broker to maintain a physical office in Nevada?

MR. SU: Real quick. Let me just interject. I believe this question has been asked to answered.

But if you can answer it, go ahead.

THE DEPONENT: And I'm not sure I understand exactly what you're asking.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Just generally, in the division's view, what are the purposes of requiring every broker to maintain a physical office in Nevada?

A. In the division's view, it's because that's what the statute requires.

Q. Okay. Does requiring a physical office ensure a broker is competent?

A. I -- I don't know that it does.

Q. Does the division have any evidence like studies or complaint data linking maintaining a physical office to a broker's ethical conduct?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Does the division have any evidence, studies, complaint data linking maintaining of a physical office to a broker's knowledge of Nevada law?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. So prior to this requirement being in effect, or in situations where it might not have been enforced, were there any specific problems caused by brokers not maintaining a physical office?

MR. SU: I would object to, I guess, as far as questions, some of the compounds would make it a little confusing, but if you can answer, go ahead.

THE DEPONENT: I don't know how to answer that, because as long as I've been with the division, that was the statute in place, so I don't know what was in place prior.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. To your knowledge, were any trade associations, like the Nevada Association of Realtors, involved in advocating for the creation or the retention of the in-state-office requirement?

A. I don't know that process.

Q. Just thinking back to your -- to your last answer in that this statute has been in place since you've been in the position, are you aware of any problems that have been caused specifically by a lack of a physical office by a broker?

A. Specifically, I'm not aware of any.

Q. I'm going to jump to a different portion of the subsection. I think it's still in the same subsection. Yes, it is. It's the next phrase. It says that the definite place of business that the broker maintains must be used for the transaction of real estate business. How does the division interpret the phrase, "use for the transaction of real estate business"?

A. I mean, I don't know the specific definition that was in mind. But, you know, it's signing paperwork, having a place where the public could visit, and a place where records are kept, a place where licenses are available for inspection.

Q. Okay. So just with regard to that phrase, "used for the transaction of real estate business," does the division have a policy in terms of what specific business activities must physically take place in that room for a broker to be in compliance with the statute?

A. There is not a specific, you know, thing that has to happen. It's that it just has to be available if a client requests to transact business there.

Q. Okay. So if -- if a broker wanted to take a client's phone call, that had to do with a real estate transaction, they wouldn't have to do that in the room mandated by the statute?

A. No.

Q. Does the same go for sending an email to a client or another agent with regards to a real estate transaction?

A. The same would apply. It does not have to occur in that location.

Q. So are there any activities that encompass a real estate transaction that are actually required to be done at the office?

A. Receiving mail. Again, at the request of the public, if they wanted to sign their documents or negotiate and speak with their - their representative or their licensee at their place of business, it has to be available.

Q. Okay. But if a client of a broker didn't care to meet in person, then every aspect of a real estate transaction could be conducted electronically.

A. It could.

Q. Does the division have a policy or procedure to make sure brokers are complying with this specific provision, this requirement to maintain a place of business for the transaction of real estate business?

A. Other than the statute -- statutory requirements, there's a specific policy.

Q. I'm -- I'm sorry. I missed that last part.

A. There's -- there's not a policy to enforce other than the statute that requires it.

MR. BEYER: Okay. For the record, I'm going to introduce Exhibit 3, which I'm putting into the chat as well. It's a related provision. This one is a regulation, Nevada administrative code section 645.627. Ms. Bruce, whenever your attorney has it pulled up there and you're comfortable proceeding, just let me know.

(WHEREUPON, Exhibit 3 was marked for identification.)

THE REPORTER: Exhibit 3 marked for the record.

THE DEPONENT: Okay.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Are you familiar with this record?

A. Yes.

Q. And how would you describe it?

A. It sets up the -- the requirements of the brokerage office. I'm not sure how to explain that.

Q. That's okay. I -- so, it's the regulation that describes the location of office, like you had said, absolutely.

So, looking at the regulation, it states "A broker can establish an office in a private room if they set aside," quote, "separate room or rooms." How often -- or how does the division verify compliance with this requirement for home-based offices?

A. I believe that's part of the licensing application process.

Q. Okay, so if they list it on the application, is that sufficient for compliance with the regulation?

A. Again, I'm not -- I don't get involved in the licensing aspect of it, so I believe there is a procedure that they have where they ask for verification of the location, they ask for documentation of signage and things that meet those requirements. But again, I'm not part of that process, so I can't speak to it.

Q. Okay. So you're not aware of how they would verify if a private room or rooms would be established for compliance with this provision?

A. I -- I'm not sure. No.

Q. So does the division conduct physical inspections of brokers' offices at private homes to ensure compliance?

A. It has the authority to. Yes.

Q. Okay. So let's say in the past year, have investigators gone to conduct physical inspections of private homes that are used as offices?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Broadening out, in the past three years, are you aware of any instance?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. So how does the division insure a broker is actually maintaining a definite place of business that is a room or rooms in their private residence?

A. Again, it would depend on if it was brought to our attention through a complaint or otherwise.

Q. Okay. So it's -- it's really reactive? It would have to come through a complaint?

A. Mostly, yes. As -- as -- as I explained, we -- we have the authority to. We don't have the staffing to be able to do that at this moment in time. However, it is something that, again, we have the authority to if we have the staffing, we can inspect those properties or those offices. But currently, it is more reactive.

Q. Does the division track how many licensed brokers in Nevada use a home as their definite place of business?

A. I don't know that we track that specifically. No.

Q. The -- the rule also requires that the office be easily accessible to the public. What does that mean in the context of an office in a private home?

A. It basically means that they would have -- it has to be available to the public to visit you. We've had instances where offices were not able to be accessible by the public because they were in an HOA or something like that, that restricted them from having the public visiting them in the office, so they were not able to have their home office there.

Q. Okay. But it doesn't need to be like a separate door in a private residence to meet the threshold for complying with this regulation.

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Let's say the division did receive a complaint for this specific regulation, what is the process for the division investigating that complaint?

A. So the initial complaint would be reviewed by myself. I would review the allegations. If I found the allegations to be credible, I would assign it to an investigator to investigate further. That process involves requesting a response from the respondent, the person the complaint is against, and then we ask them to submit supporting documentation. If the supporting documentation did not sufficiently prove or -- I don't know the proper word -- I guess, deny or -- or disprove the allegations, they may go and investigate the location itself if -- if necessary. And then once -- once a determination is made, the -- excuse me -- the determination is then forwarded to myself for review, and we determine whether or not it is an administrative sanction.

Or if there is a necessary egregious violation, or an egregious violation of a statute, or there's other statutes that were in violation as well, we may forward it to the attorney general's office to be presented for a commission hearing.

Q. Is there a threshold between those two penalties; administrative versus referral to AG?

A. It's case by case. I think it's just -- it's discretionary. It depends on the manner of the -- of the allegations or the manner of the violation. It depends on the number of violations, if there was multiple other statutes. It depends on the severity of the harm caused.

Q. Okay. So for this specific regulation, is this more to the level of an administrative penalty or referral, assuming it's the only violation that you -- that comes out of an investigation?

A. If it were the only violation, I would -- and it was not an egregious violation of the -- the statute, I would say it would probably be an administrative fine, which the broker has the opportunity to pay the fine and correct violation, and the case would be closed. If they chose to appeal the fine, it would then be forwarded automatically to the Attorney General's Office for a formal hearing in front of the commission.

Q. Okay. What would constitute an egregious violation of this rule?

A. I would say, you know, if it was something that was previously in violation and was -- was to have been corrected, and it was not corrected, and it was a continuing violation. If it was a violation that caused financial harm or -- to the public or harm to the reputation of the industry.

Q. Okay. If the division assesses an administrative fine, what is the process then for the broker to -- what are the options for the broker at that point, once an administrative fine is assessed?

A. They would have 30 days to pay the fine and correct the violation, or they can appeal. They have 30 days to appeal that violation, which is as simple as writing a letter to the division stating that they appeal the allegations or they -- they disagree with our findings, and it would be requesting a hearing before the commission. And then if they did not pay after the 30 days and correct the violation after the 30 days, then it would automatically forward to the -- the commission.

Q. Okay. I think you had mentioned, the number of brokers that the division's disciplined for failing to maintain a definite placement business in Nevada, it was one in the past how many years; or what was the timeframe?

A. I believe that one was a 2020 complaint.

Q. Okay. That was the last violation of this requirement?

A. That -- that I'm aware of. Yes.

Q. Do you know if that was specific to a commercial space or a private residence?

A. I'm not aware. Again, the -- the division does not maintain records past three years if it's an administrative fine. So I don't have the case documents to go back to review.

Q. Has the division ever identified a specific harm to consumers that the in-state-office requirement is preventing?

A. I don't know. I'm not sure how to answer that question.

Q. Has the division ever analyzed the financial impact of the in-state office requirement on out-of-state brokers?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Has the division ever assessed the additional financial burdens that the in-state-office requirement places on out-of-state brokers compared to in-state brokers?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Has the division ever received, like, complaints from licensees about the costs or burdens of the in-state-office requirement?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Just generally speaking, when -- when -- when you say "not that I'm aware of," are you specifically referring to your time as chief compliance investigator?

A. As -- as to my time with the division.

Q. Okay. So about the last eight years?

A. Yeah.

MR. BEYER: Okay. I'm going to move on to a separate topic, if you all are okay to proceed? This one will be Exhibit 4 for the record. I'm sorry.

MR. SU: Just really quick, I want to -- do you want to take a break, Ms. Bruce?

THE DEPONENT: I'm fine.

MR. SU: Okay. Very good.

MR. BEYER: Okay. All right. Just wanted to make sure. Okay. So I'm placing that in the chat now. This will be Exhibit 4 for the record. It is, I'm sorry, go ahead.

(WHEREUPON, Exhibit 4 was marked for identification.)

MR. BEYER: It is -- I'm sorry. Go ahead.

THE REPORTER: Exhibit 4 marked, sir.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. It is Nevada Revised Statute Section 645.510. Ms. Bruce, whenever they have that pulled up there for you and you're comfortable proceeding, just let me know.

A. Okay.

Q. Are you familiar with this document?

A. I am familiar with it.

Q. And how would you describe it?

A. It is the statute that requires that the license -- the person that the license is issued to, is the only person authorized to conduct business under that -- that license and under the place of business that that license is issued to.

Q. Great. So the statute states that a license does not give authority to perform any act in the chapter, quote, "from any place of business other than that specified therein." What is the division's interpretation of what constitutes an act, under the chapter governing real estate brokers?

A. I don't -- I don't know how to word this. I'm trying to -- I'm trying to think.

Q.

A. Basically, they can't have a place of business other than what is on their license. So receiving mail, having their -- their normal operations be from that location. The place that is designated on the license is the place of business.

Q. Okay. So what would constitute normal operations under the provision?

A. Again, receiving mail, having a location where the public can visit, a place where the records are kept.

Q. Okay. Is there any portion of a real estate transaction that would constitute an act under the chapter?

A. I mean, all -- all aspects of a real estate transaction could be an act under the chapter.

Q. Okay. So this statute says that a license does not give authority to perform any act from any place of business other than that specified therein. So does this statute require all portions of a real estate transaction to be performed at that location?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So all portions of a real estate transaction are to be performed at the office specified in their license?

A. In practice, no. Per the statute, that does need to be your designated location of business.

Q. So if a broker performed an act over email, let's say DocuSign, they signed a document over email versus at that location, would that technically be a violation of this provision?

A. Per of the letter of the law, it could be. It wouldn't be something that would necessarily be enforced.

Q. Okay. Why -- why is the division not enforcing that?

A. In practicality, or in practice, if -- if, you know, the clients typically would want to go and visit a property, you know, you can't -- you can't view a property without going to a physical property, a physical location. You know, there -- there are certain acts of real estate that it's not practical to be done in an office. But again, if a client or the public requests to do that -- that business in the office, they would have to have that available.

Q. Okay. So even if -- I'm just gonna stick with the idea of signing a contract, because I think it's something that's done electronically. So if that were to be performed via email or DocuSign, technically it would be a violation of this statute if it were not done at that place of business?

A. It -- it wouldn't necessarily be a violation. If the -- if the member of the public requested that it happen in that location or in the office location, and they were not afforded that opportunity, it could be a violation.

Q. Is there a portion of this statute that guides the division to determine that threshold that it's upon the client's request to perform an act?

A. There's not a specific portion of the statute that says that. No.

Q. Okay. So it's just a practice of the division, not to enforce and act a portion of a real estate transaction that is done elsewhere aside from the place of business.

MR. SU: I object to form. I don't believe the -- just object to form, I guess. But if you can answer, go ahead.

THE REPORTER: I apologize. Mr. Su, we're just having a little trouble hearing you. I think it might help if you just spoke up a little bit.

MR. SU: Sure thing. I object to form, and I'll -- I'll leave it at that.

THE REPORTER: Thank you.

THE DEPONENT: And I'm sorry. Could you repeat the question?

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. I can just move on to another question. I think it was a little long-winded, so. With -- with the evolution of technology, like I mentioned, DocuSign, Zoom, virtual property tours, does the division see that many, if not most, of the acts that a broker performs can now be accomplished remotely or at least not at that physical office location?

A. I think I could agree to that. Yeah.

Q. So does this provision technically prohibit the use of those tools?

A. It does not prohibit it, no.

Q. Why not?

A. I -- I don't know. I don't know that answer.

Q. So if -- if a broker wanted to use one of those tools, let's say Zoom, to technically be in compliance with this statute, they would have to be at that office specified in the license?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because in practice, it -- it's -- it could happen anywhere. They could be in a -- you know, in a different office. They could be at a property showing a property. They could be in their home conducting business from their home. But again, it doesn't -- it doesn't mean they don't have to have a physical place of business.

Q. If they -- but if they were performing an act under this chapter, according to this statute, would they have to be at that location?

A. It would be a case -- again, a case-by-case basis. It depends on the client, it depends on the specific act, it depends on the transaction itself.

Q. Okay. Sorry. I -- I don't mean to trick you. I've been trying to get an understanding of how this provision would be enforced in reality.

MR. BEYER: But if it's okay with you all, do -- do you want to take a 10-minute break and just kind of regroup here in -- at about 1:30? Or I'm sorry, 30 minutes past the hour or --

MR. SU: I'm fine. I'm fine if you are, but it's up to you.

THE DEPONENT: It's -- I'm -- I'm okay. I'm fine.

MR. SU: It's up to you as well. If you would like to take that break, we can. We're fine to go forward.

MR. BEYER: Okay. Why -- why don't we take just a break until half-past the hour and we'll come back and --

MR. SU: Okay. Sounds good. I'm just going to cut the mic and the camera, but I'll still remain on.

THE REPORTER: We're off the record --

MR. BEYER: Understood. We'll do the --

THE REPORTER: -- at 11:19 a.m.

(WHEREUPON, a recess was taken.)

THE REPORTER: We're on the record at 11:34 a.m.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Ms. Bruce, are you prepared to continue?

A. I am.

Q. I just want to close the loop on what we're talking about, remote versus in-office. To clarify, does the commission require that any specific act be done at the office?

A. The commission or the division? I'm sorry.

Q. I'm sorry. The division.

A. The division doesn't require a specific act to be done in -- in the office, if I understood the question correctly.

Q. Okay. So this -- this most recent statute, 645.510, requires that acts be done at the place of business specified therein. Would you agree that the commission's enforcement -- I'm sorry, the division's enforcement is -- conflicts with the requirement that any act must be performed at the place of business?

A. I don't know that it conflicts. I -- I think the practicality is that, you know, we know that real estate agents are going to, you know, the business is remote. They're going to work remotely. The -- the idea of the statute is that there has to be a definitive location of business available if a client requested to visit that location. But we understand that, you know, it's not practical in every situation that they're going to -- you know, we don't want them to be chained to a desk. They have to work remotely.

You know, if a violation were to have occurred from that remote work, we would enforce a violation from that, if there was other violations or harm caused by that remote work. We know that -- you know, if we were to say every single act has to happen from that office, and we were to bring a case forward to the commission, the commission is not going to enforce that because they're practitioners themselves. They know that in -- in reality, it's going to happen that there's going to be remote work.

Q. Okay. So they would just not enforce this provision in practice because of that reality?

A. I think that's what -- yeah. I'm sorry. I think that's what we're saying. Yes.

Q. Okay. Okay. No, that's fine. So the division does permit brokers to work remotely and perform acts, under the chapter, remotely?

A. Yes.

Q. So if a -- if a Nevada licensed broker was physically located in another state, let's say like California, and they use their phone and email to negotiate a real estate contract, some portion of a real estate transaction for Nevada property, are they violating this provision?

A. As long as they maintained a Nevada location available, they could transact outside of the state.

Q. Okay. Even if they performed an act that was regulated under this chapter?

A. If it involved Nevada property. Yes.

Q. So the State argued in their motion dismissed that there's no Nevada law that requires licensees to perform their professional functions, chained to their desks, confined to a physical office location. Does the division agree with that statement then?

A. Yes.

Q. So just -- just so I am clear, for the record, what is the division's definitive interpretation of the activities that a broker must physically perform at their designated place of business in Nevada?

A. I don't think that there's a definitive, you know, must perform these -- these actions. It's more that the location has to be available to do those actions if required or if requested.

Q. Requested by a client?

A. By the public or a client, yes. When I -- when I say "public," I mean a client.

Q. Okay. If -- if the division were to enforce this section -- I'm trying -- I'm trying to think about how to phrase it. So you -- you had said if an investigation came up where a broker was conducting remote work, would this provision be enforced automatically then, because of that remote work, or would it have to be due to it being remote that a violation occurred that this provision would be enforced? If that makes sense.

A. I -- I think --

MR. SU: And I'm going -- I'm going to just object to the form.

MR. BEYER: That -- that's okay. Let me -- let me try to rephrase that.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Would this provision be the predicate for a sanction, or would it just be automatically assessed, if the broker was working remotely?

A. I don't think it would be automatically assessed. I think it would depend on the situation as a whole. Again, every -- every complaint, every case that we investigate, it goes in different directions. There's no two that are ever the same. So I can't give a definitive answer because it -- it's all case by case. We just don't know until we are faced with the reality of it. You know, I guess, that's the best way to say it.

It just depends on the situation and the case-by-case. The division has discretion as to whether or not we are going to, you know, have a violation for remote work. If that was the only thing that was -- that happened, most likely would not be a violation. If there were other violations and that remote work contributed to those violations, then yes, we would probably find a violation if it --

Q. Are you aware -- I'm -- I'm so sorry.

A. That's okay. I'm done.

Q. Okay. Are -- are you aware of any sanctions that have been assessed due to this specific provision?

A. The only one that I'm aware of is the one I previously mentioned, however long ago that was.

Q. Okay. So this provision was also assessed on top of the in-state-office requirement?

A. Oh, I'm sorry. Are you referring to --

MR. SU: 510.

THE DEPONENT: 510? I don't know that one. I don't -- I don't know specifically on 510. I'm sorry. I was confused on what we were referring to.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. So are -- you're not aware of any sanctuary violation that's been assessed, specific to 510, that provision?

A. I'm not aware of any, no.

Q. How does the division monitor or enforce this provision specifically?

A. For 510? Can I look at it again? Sorry.

MR. SU: For the record, I'm just pulling the exhibit.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Yeah.

A. So again, it would be a case-by-case basis. If we received a complaint, or it was brought to our attention, because of an unrelated either complaint or another -- you know, if -- if it was in the process of something else, you know, maybe it's an application process, maybe it's, you know, we sent out an unrelated letter that was returned to us or something of that effect, that's when -- when that, perhaps, would come into play. It's not something that we go out and track every agent to make sure that they're not doing this.

Q. Okay. So the division isn't doing affirmative unannounced checks to see if they're performing acts under the chapter at their place of business.

A. No.

MR. BEYER: I'm going to insert another exhibit. This will be Exhibit 5 for the record. It is now in the chat. It is a Nevada administrative code section 645.655.

Ms. Bruce, whenever your attorney has it pulled up. And you're ready to proceed, just let me know.

(WHEREUPON, Exhibit 5 was marked for identification.)

THE REPORTER: Exhibit 5 marked for the record.

MR. SU: Give me one second.

THE DEPONENT: Okay. I've got it up, and I'm familiar.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. How would you describe this document?

A. That is the -- the record of transactions and trust accounts that is the regulations on what's required for recordkeeping.

Q. Okay. I'm specifically focused on subsection 2 of the regulation, which requires that a complete record of each real estate transaction be kept in the state at the place of business and be open to inspection and audit. What specific documents are included in the complete record of a real estate transaction?

A. I don't think there's an all-inclusive list, but for example, all offers, all purchase agreements, all brokerage agreements, any correspondence relating to those purchase agreements; if there's negotiations, whether it be emails or text messages, that there is a record of that, that's maintained.

Q. Okay. Does this rule require physical paper copies of all records to be stored at the Nevada office?

A. It does not.

Q. So could a broker satisfy the requirement by storing all records electronically on a secure Cloud-based server?

A. As long as there was the ability to access that at the business location.

Q. So it's not required to be a local hard drive at the office?

A. No.

Q. So if the division requested an audit, based on this provision, could a broker comply by providing immediate remote electronic access to the records, or must the investigator physically go visit that place of business?

A. They could provide access remotely.

Q. And that would be sufficient for compliance with the regulation?

A. As long as it is a true correct version of that. Yes. So access directly to the Cloud.

Q. Okay. Could the broker give that access if they were in another state?

A. They could.

Q. So they don't have to be at the definite place of business to provide access to the records?

A. No.

Q. How does the division currently initiate a review or audit of broker records? Is it primarily through physical inspection or electronic submission?

A. It could be either.

Q. How --

A. It would depend on -- sorry. I should have answered quicker. It would depend on the broker's method of storage. If the broker had physical storage, we would do an on-site inspection. If the broker had Cloud storage and allowed us access to the Cloud directly from -- you know, if they provided us a login, or if they preferred to have a terminal set up at the location, again, it would be up to the broker if they wanted to allow us access in their office rather than providing us an actual login, they could do that as well.

Q. How frequently does the division conduct in-person audits of records of brokers?

A. I'm not aware of any myself.

Q. And that's in the last eight years that you've been with the division.

A. Correct.

Q. So the brokers are primarily providing you electronic access to these records?

A. In response to a complaint, yes.

Q. What about like an unannounced visit, would the expectation be that the broker would provide records at the location then?

A. If that were to occur, yes.

Q. What -- what purposes are achieved by an in-person inspection of records versus remote inspection of records?

A. In-person, if -- if there was a reason to believe there was records that were not maintained on the Cloud. You know, if -- if we're looking for, for example, an embezzlement situation, where we would need to view other records other than what's on -- on the Cloud.

Q. Has the division ever disciplined a broker for storing records electronically, even if they were accessible from the Nevada office?

A. No. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. How often does the division conduct business with licensees via physical mail?

A. There are certain notifications that are required to be sent certified mail, but typically we do send a lot of correspondence by email or electronic correspondence.

Q. What -- what type of physical mail is required?

A. Any -- if we did not have an email address for a broker, we would mail any correspondence directly to the place of business. If there was a notice of an administrative sanction or notice of fine, that would be certified mailed. Notifications for hearings would be certified mail. Renewal notices, I believe, from our licensing section, would be mailed. The actual physical license would be mailed every time it's renewed. So there is definitely physical mail that is required.

Q. From a technological standpoint, on the broker side, is there any reason why they couldn't securely provide you with all the documents that the division requires of licensees?

A. I'm sorry. Could you say that again?

Q. Yeah. Sorry. Are there any -- are there any required documents that a licensee has to provide to the division, physically versus electronically?

A. I don't -- as far as in relation to a complaint or in just in general?

Q. Just in general.

A. There are situations where they would have to have a physical -- something provided physically. In the case of a broker terminating a licensee, they would have to physically send back the license for that licensee. That's just one example I can think of off the top of my head. A lot of that would have to do with licensing specifically. And again, I'm not involved in the licensing process.

Q. Okay. I'm just going to move on to the next topic, just more general government purposes for these statutes and regulation, what are the benefits for them.

Does the division have any data, studies, reports, complaints showing that brokers without physical in-state offices are more likely to harm consumers?

A. I don't know that they do. I'm confused by the question, because they're all -- all licensees are required to have an in-state license, so I don't know why -- the -- the way you phrased that confused me.

Q. I'm sorry. I said an in-state office, not an in-state license. Sorry, if I misspoke.

A. I'm sorry. I thought I heard you say that they would not have an in-state office, so I was confused by that.

Q. Okay. Let me -- sorry. Let me -- let me try again.

Does the division have any data or research on their sign -- side saying that brokers without physical in-state offices are more likely to harm consumers than if they didn't have an in-state office.

A. Again, you're saying that if they did not have an in-state office, which I don't know that they have that, because they are required to have an in-state office. All licensees are required to have an in-state office.

Q. Okay. But the division hasn't looked into or studied whether the office requirement prevents harm to consumers?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Are there any purposes in the division's eyes -- let me -- let me think.

In the division's eyes, are any of the purposes for an in-state office diminished if a broker operates out of his or her private home versus the commercial office?

A. Again, the division doesn't -- doesn't determine that. We go by what the statute says, and the statute requires it, so that is why we require it.

Q. Okay. So the division doesn't really have any rationale for the in-state-office requirement itself?

MR. SU: I'm going to object to the form. That doesn't -- oh -- I'm going to -- thank you. I'm going to object as to form. I don't know that that was phrased -- I think it was lack of evidence. I don't know what was said there, but I don't know if it was accurately what was testified to. But you can answer. Go ahead.

THE REPORTER: I'm sorry. Mr. Su, can you repeat that?

MR. SU: Yeah. I'm -- objection -- objecting to form. I don't think the -- the way the question was posed accurately reflects prior testimony. But if she can answer, she can go ahead.

THE DEPONENT: Could you rephrase the question? I -- or restate the question?

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Was this -- did -- did I ask you about private homes versus commercial homes? Is this what you're --

A. No. I just don't remember what you asked. I'm sorry.

Q. Okay. We're all lost. Let's see. Is the Division aware of any study or research or evidence, on its end, that real estate transactions handled virtually, are inherently riskier than those handled in person?

A. Is the division aware? Is that what you're asking? I --

Q. Correct.

A. -- I -- I don't know. The division doesn't write the statutes. We don't write the laws. We just enforce them. So I don't know what went into the rationale for the law.

Q. Okay. So one of the things, I think you had mentioned previously that one of the purposes of the requirements is that the division can inspect records at the location. I think you had mentioned enforcement. So I'm -- I'm going to negate that question. Okay.

With regard to inspecting records, would the division's -- could the division be satisfied with a rule that required a broker to -- why don't I rephrase it this way.

If you reach out to a broker and request a record, what length of time or period does a broker have to respond with that record?

A. In response to a complaint, we typically allow seven to ten days, depending on the severity of the allegations.

Q. What would occur after the seven to ten days if they didn't respond?

A. We would send a final request or demand for response, which again would typically be a seven- to ten-day timeframe. If they failed to respond, it would be an automatic commission hearing for failure to respond.

THE REPORTER: Ms. Bruce, can you repeat that, please?

THE DEPONENT: Yes. It would be a notice to respond -- or a request to respond seven to ten days. If they did not respond, they would receive a final request which would, again, give them a seven- to ten-day demand to respond. And if they fail to respond, we would refer it to our deputy attorney -- or to our attorney general's office for a hearing before the commission for failure to respond.

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. So is the requirement to maintain records at the place of business, effectively an insurance policy, for the division to be able to access records somewhere in the state?

A. I don't know necessarily an insurance policy. But yes, it would be to ensure that records are available and maintained.

Q. Given the evolution in technology, like we said a lot of your records requests are going via email and are being produced that way, have the original reasons for requiring these in-state mandates been eroded?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Why is that?

A. Because there could be physical records, as well as the electronic records; there could be additional records that, you know, maybe would not necessarily be on that -- on that electronic Cloud. There could be something physically in the office.

Q. Has the division ever proposed or considered repealing or modernizing these in-state provisions to account for the new technologies?

A. The division doesn't modify the statutes. No.

Q. Or provided recommendations?

A. It's possible, if there was an industry request, that it could be explored. But that would -- that would come through the public to the legislator. It wouldn't come through the division.

Q. Would a broker be able to physically scan records to all to provide a request?

A. They could. However, to ensure that it is a true and correct record, and that all records were provided, it is required that it's open to inspection at the place of business.

Q. Okay. Just the prospect that it could be open to inspection, but if you were to require a specific document that could be provided electronically, that's sufficient for the division?

A. It could be. Again, yes, it could be provided electronically. However, if we have reason to believe that the records are not being provided, as requested, and there were other documents that were being withheld, that's what I believe one of the reasons for the requirement is to have physical inspection.

Q. Has the division ever evaluated potential cost savings for licensees if the office requirement was repealed?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Has the division ever -- has the division ever evaluated the potential cost savings or efficiencies for both -- or for the division if in-state offices were eliminated?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. So if a broker could perform all their duties competently and ethically while working remotely, and if the division can access all records they needed for an audit electronically, why should Nevada maintain a requirement that brokers have an in-state office?

A. I can't answer that. I don't make the laws.

Q. Do -- do you, in your experience, at the division, find any merit if that were to be the case, if a broker can be competent, work remotely, division can access all records electronically, do you at the division see merit for the physical office, just in your investigations?

A. Again, that's -- our job is to enforce the laws as they're written, so we don't -- we don't opine on the statutes; we enforce them as they're written.

Q. From an inspection standpoint, are there parts of an inspection that you all conduct that can only be achieved if a physical office setting is present versus remote inspection?

A. Having never performed an inspection myself, I -- I don't think I can answer that question.

Q. Have you heard from any of your investigators whether an in-state office is beneficial for purposes of inspection?

A. I have not.

Q. When you're -- this might be a case-by-case basis, but when -- when your inspectors are conducting an inspection, what is the frequency that they're going out to the physical location of the brokers?

A. Again, I'm not aware of any inspections that have occurred, so I -- I can't speak to the frequency.

Q. You're not aware of any inspections that have occurred at the place of business of the broker?

A. I'm not aware of any, no.

Q. So if the in-state-office requirement were repealed tomorrow, what harm might occur to the public, assuming all other licensing and competency rules remain in place?

A. I mean, I don't know that I can speculate on what harm -- if there's potential of harm being done to the public in any -- any requirements of the statutes, which is why the statutes are there. I don't -- I can't speculate on what would happen if those statutes were changed.

Q. Okay. In the division's eyes, and in your experience as a compliance investigator, do you see harms against the public that are prevented by the in-state-office requirement?

A. I could see -- yes. I could see that there are things that are prevented by having that requirement.

Q. Such as?

A. Such as embezzlement, such as competency. If you're not in the state of Nevada or don't have familiarity with the state of Nevada, how can you confidently transact real estate without having any knowledge, a personal, intimate knowledge of the state.

Q. Okay. So the division sees the in-state-office requirement as furthering the personal knowledge of the state by the broker?

A. It could. Yes.

Q. Let's say the in-state-transaction requirement, the requirement that all acts must be performed by the office therein, if that were repealed tomorrow, would there be any harms to the public that would occur?

A. Again, it's -- it's hard to speculate on potential harm. Everything's case-by-case. We don't know until it occurs.

Q. Has the division ever come across a harm done to any member of the public because a broker hasn't conducted a real estate act at their place of business?

A. I can't speak to ever, but I'm sure it has. We receive hundreds of complaints a month. So I'm -- I'm sure that at some point in the history, there has been harm.

Q. In your time at the division, have you had any knowledge of a specific harm to the public that's occurred because the broker hasn't conducted a real estate transaction act at their place of business?

A. Because I'm not involved in every investigation prior to the last three months, I can't speak to every single investigation or every single potential case that's occurred.

Q. So can you name any violation or harm that's occurred because a broker hasn't performed a real estate transaction act in the state at the office location?

A. I have personally had cases from out-of-state brokers where there was harm. I can't speak to if that was a direct result, or if it was just a result of they weren't doing their -- they weren't -- they weren't following other statutes.

Q. Okay. So no harm specifically as a result of them not performing an act at their Nevada office?

A. I don't think -- I'm not sure that's what I said. I think it's more. I don't know if it was a direct result of that or it was a -- I'm trying to think how to work this so that it makes sense, and without revealing confidential information for other cases, all cases are confidential.

I've had cases where a broker was not physically in the office, they were not physically supervising the activities that were happening in their office or from their office, and it did cause harm to the public.

Q. Okay. One minute here. I'm just trying to run through a checklist to see if I have anything to clean up.

MR. BEYER: If it's okay with you all, would you want to take just a 10-minute break here, come back at 20 after? And, you know, maybe we'll have some cleanup, but otherwise, we -- we think we might be done, and then we can just proceed with cross really quickly after that.

MR. SU: That's fine.

MS. BODEN: It's -- mindful of the time.

MR. SU: Oh. Yes. Just to be mindful, we have this room until 1:00 o'clock, so as long as we can try to wrap this up by then, yeah, it should not be a problem.

MR. BEYER: I think that's totally feasible. I think we might be done, but I'm -- I'm just going to double check here. So if it's okay to come up 20 after and -- and we'll --

MR. SU: Yeah.

MR. BEYER: -- we'll wrap it up? Okay.

MR. SU: Sounds good.

MR. BEYER: Thank you.

MR. SU: Thank you all.

THE REPORTER: We're off the record at 12:11 p.m.

(WHEREUPON, a recess was taken.)

THE REPORTER: We're on the record at 12:21 p.m.

MR. BEYER: Counsel, we have no further questions at this time, so if you want to proceed with any cross you might have, please feel free.

MR. SU: Thank you very much. Just briefly.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. SU:

Q. Ms. Bruce, going into the very last line of questioning, could you elaborate on some situations where the division might drag some benefit from the in-state-office requirements that might not have been addressed in your prior testimony?

A. I think in -- in terms of inspections and investigations, being able to verify that the records are true and accurate and that what was provided to us electronically matches what was maintained, there is benefit there. I think, just in -- in general, being able to have a location where we're unable to reach a person otherwise, if, you know, email is not working, phone is not working, mail is not working, that we have the alternative to actually do a physical location check to see if they are, in fact, there and -- and try to reach them there. Or if, you know, if they have staff that's there that we can get a message. So there is benefit to having an in-state office.

Q. And this is a benefit not just to the state and the division, but -- but also to the public; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Thank you.

MR. SU: I pass the witness. If you have any redirect.

MR. BEYER: I'm sorry. I -- we're having a little trouble hearing you, Mr. Su.

MR. SU: I pass the witness. If there's any redirect you want to ask.

FURTHER EXAMINATION

BY MR. BEYER:

Q. Just following up on that, Ms. Bruce, are you aware of any instance where an investigator has gone to an in-person office to verify the truth and authenticity of a document?

A. I'm not personally aware, no.

MR. BEYER: Okay. No further questions.

THE REPORTER: Mr. Beyer, would you like to order the original?

MR. BEYER: Yes.

THE REPORTER: And Mr. Su, would you like to order a copy?

MR. SU: Sure. Let's do that.

THE REPORTER: And lastly, Ms. Boden, would you like to order a copy?

MR. BEYER: Nope. I will take Mr. Beyers.

THE REPORTER: We are off the record at 12:23.

13. The letter was returned to the Division.

14. Division personnel went to the Sun Valley Realty location on October 16, 2015, and found it to be closed. The receptionist stated that RESPONDENT moved months prior.
